Matsumoto Castle (Matsumoto Jo) is one of four castles designated as National Treasures of Japan and is the oldest castle donjon remaining in Japan. Construction began in 1592 on this elegant black and white structure with three turrets. Because of the elegant black roof, Matsumoto Castle is sometimes called Crow Castle. Inside the castle are steep stairs and low ceilings leading past displays of armor and weapons from the Sengoku period ("Warring-States") when the castle was built. The narrow wooden windows, once used by archers and gunmen, provide amazing views of the Japanese Alps, Matsumoto City and the koi and swans circling in the moat below. Ukiyo-e Museum is an ultramodern building housing the private collection of the Sakai family, quite simply one of the best museums of woodblock prints in Japan. With more than 100,000 prints, it's believed to be the largest collection of its kind in the world and includes representative masterpieces of all known Ukiyo-e artists. A 15-minute slide show with English-language explanations introduces the current exhibition and shows how woodblock prints are made. The main building is the former Nagano District Court building, which was built in 1908 and was transferred to the present location with great effort. Other buildings include the Showa Kogyo silk factory, Matsumoto juvenile correction institution, a museum for exhibitions and more.

It's also an important time for most of the babies that were born in the early spring to make their appearance to the other monkeys and to us visitors. During this time, you will be able to see mothers with their babies and see how the mother watches over them.
